Who Can Come To Camp

All Cub Scouts and Webelos are invited to Camp . However, they must come with enough leaders/ parents to meet the leadership requirements of the Boy Scouts of America. The best way to do this is for packs or dens to sign up as a group and share the leadership among parents and den/Webelos leaders (male and female). No Tiger Cubs or siblings please.

What You and Your Scouts Should Expect

Camp Outback Adventure is held at Camp Brinkley, one of the Chief Seattle Council's premier camping facilities. Completed in 1967, Camp Brinkley has become the exclusive location for Cub Scout summer resident camping.

Sleeping at camp is either in tents with wooden floors or in adirondacks (three sided shelter) on wooden bunks.

The campsite is equipped with rustic bathroom facilities. There is a central shower house for everyone's use. Separate shower facilities are provided for female leaders.

Food is prepared by the camp staff and served in the dining hall — breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Camp staff is responsible for conducting all the fun camp programs and assisting leaders and parents with campsite activities. Parents are responsible for supervision of the Scouts , getting the boys from station to station and other such tasks.

There is also a camp trading post with souvenirs, snacks, drinks, supplies and Scout products.
